David joins me once again, this time to suggest that British outsourcer SERCO and its chairman Roy Gardner could have offered a Virtual Reality Death Pool Sports Book service to intellectual and financial elite, and delivered the service over patented 'dirty-fiber' devices enabling clandestine betting on times of death and body counts at mass casualty events. Today's show will explore the October 1, 2017 shootings in Las Vegas, attributed by media play injects to the 64 year old late and former IRS agent Stephen Paddock who allegedly killed 58 people, fired 1100+rounds, had twenty-four firearms including .223-caliber AR-15-type semi-automatic rifles fitted with vertical forward grips and bump fire stocks.

15:20 HAWKINS: What happens if you lease dark fiber to organized crime groups in Chicago and London and Shanghai and wherever in the world. And they have an opportunity, when one occurs, for someone – and I am not saying Mr. Sweigert did it, but remember Sweigert's skills and professional background include describing himself as an ethical hacker. Right.

[Below photo then displayed]

15:41 HAWKINS: And checking for vulnerabilities in people's networks and presumably if he is truly ethical advising the ethical client 'look you got a back door here, you had better close it'. Now there's no guarantee, and I am not an expert at this, if Sweigert is as smart as he seems to think he is. What happens if he is not a very good ethical hacker.
